ANSA AUTOMOTIVE LIMITED'S 2ND ANNUAL AWARDS CEREMONY

Change... Challenge... Compete!

On Saturday 15th February 2014, ANSA Automotive Limited, a division of the ANSA McAL Group of Companies, hosted its 2nd Annual Awards Ceremony at Gaston Courts in Lange Park Chaguanas.

The ceremony was held to celebrate and recognize top performing and long standing employees. Mr. Rahim Mohammed, Head of Sector HR- Automotive delivered the opening remarks

Mr. Mohammed appealed to those in attendance to not let success stop them from bettering and improving themselves, and encouraged them to believe that they can always achieve more.

Mr. David Sabga, Chairman and Sector Head – Automotive gave the night's feature address and took time to recognize the different departments which contribute to the successful running of the company. He hinted at future developments for 2014, such as the opening of the new Ford Motors showroom and the appointment of two General Managers. Mr. Sabga called on all ANSA

Automotive employees to focus on becoming number one in the industry and reminded them "We're not just selling cars, we're selling service; we're selling an attitude!"

The final speaker for the night was ANSA Automotive's Managing Director, Mr. Jerome Borde, who echoed the sentiments delivered by Mr. David Sabga. On hand to assist with the presentation of the awards were Ms. Teresa White, Group HR Director and Mr. A. Norman Sabga, Chairman and Chief Executive of the ANSA McAL Group of Companies.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR TOP JOURNALISTS

Guardian Media shines at regional Agricultural Journalism awards

National media played an important role in spurring and generating interest in the agricultural sector. Coverage of the agricultural sector has the potential to spur investments and agri-entrepreneurship.

These were among the statements made by Food Production Minister Senator Devant Maharaj, who delivered the keynote at the fourth Excellence in Agricultural Journalism Awards, hosted by the Inter-American Institute for Cooperation on Agriculture (IICA) and the Caribbean Agricultural Research and Development Institute (CARDI) on Saturday 15th February 2014 at the Capital Plaza, Port-of-Spain.

He said the sector expanded by 5.1 per cent in 2013 from the previous year and the contribution of agriculture to the GDP increased by 77 per cent from 2009 to 2013. Maharaj said there has been a reduction in food imports from 2010 to 2013, while food inflation is down to 7.3 per cent since November 2013.

Mr. Maharaj said 2014 has been designated the international year of family farms. Smallholder family farms produce four-fifths of the developing world's food, according to statistics cited by Maharaj.

"These women and men are key contributors to global, regional and national food security. The aim of this United Nations designated year of celebrations is to raise the profile of family farming and smallholder farming."

ANTHONY N SABGA CARIBBEAN AWARDS FOR EXCELLENCE ANNOUNCES ITS 2014 LAUREATES

Three Recipients Named

The Anthony N Sabga Caribbean Awards for Excellence is pleased to announce three laureates for its 2014 Awards. This year's recipients are:

Arts & Letters:

Professor Liam Teague, Trinidad and Tobago

Prof Liam Teague, a Trinidadian, is perhaps the most versatile and accomplished pan musician in the world today. At the age of 40, he is a Professor of Music at the Northern Illinois University, and performs throughout the world, including Trinidad & Tobago, where he returns to arrange for Panorama.

From an early age, Prof Teague was recognized as a prodigy, and won several pan competitions in Trinidad. He was a scholarship student at Northern Illinois University (NIU), where he was awarded a BM and a MM in performance, and where he was a research scholar from 2001-2004. Today, he holds the rank of Associate Professor at NIU and is head of its Steelband Studies department.

His association with Trinidad & Tobago is also an important part of his musical life, as he returns often to arrange for Panorama. He has arranged for Silver Stars, Starlift and Skiffle Bunch, and has served as an adjudicator for the Junior Panorama. Prof Teague also conducts master classes at the UWI and, over the last eight years, has recruited students from there to NIU's graduate music programmes. He was able (with the assistance of the Ministry of Arts & Multiculturalism and the Trinidad Music Foundation) to assist two talented Tobagonian musicians to attend the Birch Creek Music and Performance Centre summer camp in the US, in 2013.

Prof Teague has received many awards for his work, including the Trinidad & Tobago Humming Bird Medal (Silver). He was a co-winner of the soloist championship at the 1992 National Steelband Music Festival, and champion steelpan soloist at the Trinidad & Tobago Music Festival.

Public & Civic Contributions:

Karen de Souza, Guyana

Karen de Souza is a women's and children's rights activist from Guyana. She is the co-founder of Red Thread, an advocacy organization which provides service and support, education, and advocacy for victims of rape, domestic and other forms of violence and for the lowest-waged sectors of women.

Ms de Souza and Red Thread also conduct research and have contributed to the drafting of laws and training for judicial officers to support protection of women and children and victims of human trafficking. They also participate in national, international and regional agency programmes on areas of interest, as well as taking education directly to the people

Karen de Souza has been recognized by various international organizations for her work. She has been a Fellow of the Commonwealth Understanding Fellowship Scheme (London/Barbados), and was the US Embassy (Guyana's) nominee for the 2012 Woman of Courage Award.

Science & Technology:

Dr Richard Robertson, St Vincent and the Grenadines

Dr Richard Robertson, Director of the UWI's Seismic Research Centre in St Augustine, Trinidad, is a Geologist and Volcanologist whose work has been ground-breaking in the study of volcanoes and the geology of the region. He is a world expert on the subject whose books and articles are used as benchmarks, and he is active in public education on the issue. Dr Robertson has published academic books, and numerous refereed articles and book chapters in his areas of expertise.

Born in St Vincent, Dr Robertson's interest in volcanology was inspired by his personal experience in 1979, when he and his family woke to the eruption of the Soufriere volcano, which displaced thousands of Vincentians. He subsequently studied Geology at UWI, Volcanology at the University of Leeds in the UK (M Phil) and completed his Ph D in Geology at Mona, Jamaica. His PhD thesis (The Volcanic Geology of pre-Soufriere Rocks in St Vincent) and his Volcanic Hazards Atlas are benchmarks in the study of volcanology in the Eastern Caribbean.

Dr Robertson has been much recognized and awarded for his work. He has received scholarships from the UNDP and Association of Commonwealth Universities for higher education. He has also received grants from the Royal Commission for the Exhibition of 1851 and a Commonwealth Professional Fellowship. In collaboration with colleagues at the Seismic Research Centre he has secured project grants from the Caribbean Development Bank, USAID, European Union, CCRIF and the Government of Trinidad & Tobago.

Ms. Monique Hassell, Group Organisational Development Manager of ANSA McAL (Barbados) Ltd. chats with Ms. Jan Lewis, the prison's volunteer librarian on the piece entitled 'Crop Over'

ANSA BARBADOS PROMOTES SECOND CHANCES

Artistic Expression Of Inmates Showcased

The artistic expression of inmates in the rehabilitation programme at Her Majesty's Prison (HMP) Dodds, Barbados has found a wider outlet through the publication of the prison's first calendar. Some 4 000 copies of the 2014 calendar, appropriately titled Promoting Second Chances, were printed and distributed over the Christmas season to families and friends of inmates and to ANSA McAL (Barbados) Limited, which sponsored the production of the calendar and placed them throughout its subsidiaries.

The calendar features the work of several National Independence Festival of Creative Arts (NIFCA) awardees as well as poetry from other inmates, with each month highlighting artwork and poetry reflective of the theme selected for that month.

The calendar was put together by Ms. Jan Lewis, the prison's volunteer librarian and Mr. Peter Forde, inmate orderly who also contributed two poems. Lewis said that the inmates were enthusiastic about the project and that there was a "wonderful camaraderie" among them. She added that the calendar was extremely well-received to the point where some entities which had seen the calendar expressed interest in purchasing artwork featured. Ms. Lewis also said that the calendar was part of the prison's Second Chance initiative which aims to educate society on its rehabilitative efforts. "Our hope in pulling this calendar together was to encourage those who use it to be generous of heart and mind, resulting in inmates being offered their second chances after their release," Lewis explained.

Mr. Forde, 37, said of being involved with the calendar, "It's satisfying and gratifying to see the finished product." He is passionate about writing and directing and wants to help improve film production in Barbados upon his release from prison.

Mr. Rodney Beckles, whose colourful piece entitled "Crop Over" is featured in the month of July, has been involved in the prison's art programme for ten years. "Painting helps me relax; it's my meditation. It also has helped a lot in my rehabilitation and to provide for my children," he explained. Over 100 of his paintings have been sold.

Mr. Andy Archer has two pieces of work featured and was excited to see the calendar come together. "As a senior artist I took up the role of helping to tutor some of the guys and it was exciting to see the different ideas coming together and seeing the finished product. The most gratifying part for me was seeing how excited people were about it." The 34-year-old self-taught artist, who has won five awards at NIFCA including the Ivan Payne Award in 2011 and 2012, said he was already looking forward to the 2015 calendar and has started working on his pieces. "I'm also helping other guys get their pieces together and so we're putting a lot of work into it." Mr. Archer also thanked corporate Barbados including ANSA McAL for taking an interest in the Second Chance initiative.

Ms. Monique Hassell, Group Organisational Development Manager of ANSA McAL (Barbados) Ltd. said that the group was impressed with the quality of artwork and poetry in the calendar and commended the prison for its rehabilitation programme. AMBL has established a relationship with the prison which has also seen it donating eight computers, a television and a DVD player for educational use in the prison's rehabilitation programme through Consolidated Finance Company and Standard Distributors (Barbados) – two of AMBL's subsidiaries. "We continue to be passionate about helping persons to reintegrate effectively once their debt to society has been paid. To this end, we are also exploring micro-enterprise opportunities with a view to assisting former inmates with generating income for themselves and jobs for others."

"We were overwhelmed by the enthusiastic response to the 2014 calendar and so are eagerly looking forward to our involvement in the 2015 edition," Ms. Hassell added.

Fifty poetry submissions and 12 pieces of artwork are being sought from inmates for the 2015 calendar.

Ms. Jan Lewis, volunteer librarian at HMP Dodds (centre) speaks about the creativity of the poetry and artwork featured in HMP Dodd's 2014 calendar with Ms. Monique Hassell, Group Organisational Development Manager, ANSA McAL (Barbados) Ltd. and Mr. Granville Drakes, Training Officer, Barbados Prison Service. Special thanks to Ryan Toppin for his continued commitment to MQI!

SPECIAL AWARD FOR MR. GERRY BROOKS

UWI Honours Group COO

Mr. Gerry Brooks, Group Chief Operating Officer of ANSA McAL, was among twenty five past students of the University of the West Indies to receive their Alumni Association's 2014 'Distinguished Alumni Award'. This award celebrates alumni who continuously stand out through their significant contributions to their professions, nationally, regionally and internationally.

An attorney-at-law, Mr. Brooks also serves as Vice President of the Law Association of Trinidad and Tobago, Chairman of the Finance and Investment Committee of the Caribbean Court of Justice Trust Fund and President of the Family Planning Association. He also chairs several boards locally and regionally.

At the awards function, held on Thursday 20th February 2014 at the UWI's St. Augustine Campus, Sir Edwin Carrington received the University's highest award – The Pelican Award. Other recipients included Robert Riley, Hannibal Najjar, Charles Percy, Anna Maria Garcia-Brooks, Dawn Thomas and Dana Seetahal.

On receiving the award, Mr. Brooks remarked that he felt "humbled and privileged by the recognition from the University. It has also provided a springboard to work with UWI on several programmes, including its mentorship programmes, as well as to continue to be an exemplar to younger graduands."

Mr. Gerry Brooks, ANSA McAL's Group COO is flanked by his sons and his wife, Mrs. Anna-Maria Garcia-Brooks who was also a recipient of the UWI Distinguished Alumni Award

FOR SPARROW, WITH LOVE

Guardian Media Ltd partners with Canboulay Productions

In honour of calypso legend The Mighty Sparrow, Guardian Media Ltd.

alongside Canboulay Productions hosted a five-part lecture series entitled 'If Sparrow Say So' that chronicled the life of Slinger 'Mighty Sparrow' Francisco.

GML's General Manager – Marketing Ms. Cyntra Achong presented Sparrow with the first copy of the 'For Sparrow, With Love' special tribute publication at the launch of the lecture/performance series titled 'My Whole Life in Calypso'.

The Guardian and Sparrow have had a long and intriguing relationship that goes right back to the beginning of his career in calypso. It has had many, many twists and turns and even been immortalised in his tongue-in-cheek calypso.

MEET OUR PEOPLE

Allow us to introduce you to...

Sonja Julien-Wells

Marketing Manager, McEneaney Business Machines/Standard Equipment

CB: Can you tell us a little bit about the portfolio that you hold and some of your main responsibilities?

SJW: I currently manage the Marketing function for MBM. This ranges from the development of marketing strategy and identifying opportunities for client engagements in both offline and online channels, to booth design and set up for events, liaising with the advertising agency for placement of print advertisements and co-ordination of special promotions. All in all it is a very hands on role; often I have to roll up my sleeves and literally "get dirty" as in the case of rearranging equipment and setting up for events.

CB: Where can members of the ANSA McAL family find you?

SJW: Our Head Office is located at #34 Richmond Street Port of Spain, but MBM falls under ANSA McAL Trading Limited and this includes Standards Equipment, which is located at ANSA McAL Center Chaguana. Additionally Crown Industries Limited (CIL) (also in Chaguana) is managed in terms of reporting lines by MBM.

CB: Do you have any memorable moments in the Group? Any funny stories?

SJW: I entered the Group in July 2013; right in the middle of the Group's All Fours competitions. In my very first week I attended a playoff match between MBM and CIL, which was organized as an after work lime. As a marketer, my first instinct was to take pictures to capture the moment: you never know when a picture will come in handy. There I was, smartphone in hand, readying myself to snap the groups as they were preparing their game plans before the official start. To my surprise, when I asked a particular team to pose for a shot, I was told "Can you come back later? We need to plan this properly and we do not want anybody to overhear or distract us", lol! That was when I learnt All Fours in ANSA McAL is truly a big stakes event!

CB: When you get off work, what are some things that you like to do for fun?

SJW: I enjoy listening to music and reading a good book. Sometimes on a Friday evening, the occasional after work lime with friends does the trick as well. I have two pre-teen girls, and I enjoy spending time with them and my husband, taking in a nice movie or a TV show. There's always an opportunity to laugh when my girls get to chatting.

CB: Any secret talents or special skills?

SJW: Hmmmm..... Well I like to consider myself an amateur artist. Amateur because I'm not discovered as yet. Seriously though, I do paint and sketch. In a previous life I was going to pursue my education in this field, by obtaining a degree in Art and attending an Art college. I was quite good at it in secondary school and did Art for CXC. I ventured into Marketing instead as the next best creative field, as my mother was concerned I'd be a struggling artist all my life. That was before graphic design exploded into what it is today.

CB: Seeing as you work in a place like MBM that carries all the latest technology in printers, laptops etc., would you describe yourself as a 'techie'?

SJW: A techie, I strive to be. With the 'millennium children' I have, I'm forced to keep pace with the latest trends and technologies, just to be able to communicate, understand and support them.

Apps, tags, hashtags etc... it's a part of their vocabulary and lifestyle. Just imagine they've never had to learn to operate a landline – touchtone or rotary phone, for them it's all cell phones, iPods, tablets and computers. In my field to be effective and to continue to grow and respond in a way that will allow you to connect with your customers, hands on knowledge of the emerging channels across which information is shared today and the devices which allow this, is critical. Add that to the fact that MBM supports hardware and software from leading global brands, I'd be a "dead fish" if I did not strive to be a "Techie."

CB: If you got the opportunity to choose one item from MBM's catalogue, any one item, which would it be and why?

SJW: Hmmmm... that's a tough one. There is such a wide variety of product lines. If I had to choose one, it would be from the perspective of having the advantage of mobility while working "on the go", when at out of office events and meetings, through the use of the Samsung Tablets with SIM Card slots that we have on hand. I'd be able to check email, take calls and surf the net to peruse our Social media feeds – LinkedIn and Facebook, with a device that isn't bulky, but lightweight and handy, which could fit neatly in my handbag.

CB: We like Samsung tablets too...hint hint!

CB: We recently had the pleasure of attending the Canon Smart Print & Imaging Solutions 2014 Expo and there were some pretty impressive pieces of equipment on display. Do you ever still get awed by the equipment that is available and the things that they are capable of doing?

SJW: Technology today is fascinating!! Canon our long term partner of over 40 years, has delivered some quality innovations, that are limited only by the users' ability to operate the equipment. Remote, secure and mobile print through hardware and software applications is one of my favorite advances. You can print from your smartphone, edit and change documents in between meetings on your mobile device and have this updated instantly on the office server, without emailing a million versions to the relevant parties concerned with the document. Recently I watched the old movie "Back to the Future 3" and the time zone in the movie was 2015, which for us is next year. The reality of what is available from Canon and the other brands MBM carries, surpasses any "dream" creation the moviemakers could have conjured.

CB: Do you have any other favorite ANSA McAL products/brands/services?

SJW: Well, I'm not a drinker to my heart, but one of my favorite Group products comes from Carib Brewery, and it's Malta. As a child my grandmother would often bring home, after one of her trips to town (Port-of-Spain) a box of 'chicken and chips' and a Malta. On arriving home she'd say, "Sonjie! Come, let's go eat." Our ritual was to share the box of food, drizzle ketchup all over it, biscuit and all, lol, and wash it all down with a cold glass of Malta each. The product today is still engaging to children and it invokes for me a loving memory of my childhood.

CB: We think that Carib needs to turn this story into an ad pronto!

CB: Any words of wisdom or personal credos that you would like to leave with our readers?

SJW: • Always pursue your dreams. You're never too old to attain them. Keep God and family close and the rest will take care of itself.

CB: Everyone really wants to know the truth...is it really dangerous for us to put our hands and faces on a photocopier and make scans or copies? We've heard that it is but we don't buy it.

SJW: No it's not dangerous. But I wouldn't recommend it. According to Murphy's Law "What can go wrong, will go wrong." So picture this – you scan or copy your hand, then move onto your face, then you say well, no one's around why not my foot? By the time you're through, you raise up and there standing in the corridor observing is your boss. Now tell me, can you think of a creative story to talk your way out of that one? Hence, I wouldn't recommend it.

ANSA IN D CARNIVAL

Carib Breakthrough Artiste 2014

For Carnival 2014 Carib introduced a new category in the world renowned International Soca Monarch Competition, the 'Carib Breakout Artiste 2014'. The names of 24 soca stars were announced as the contenders for the prize, the list was then narrowed down to 2 semi-finalists and then through a system of voting the winner was selected. Partnering with Carib on this venture was Ford Trinidad, who sponsored the grand prize of a Ford Ranger, and SLAM 100.5FM.

ANSA McAL's ANSA Automotive and Carib were overflowing with star power, as contenders visited both the Ford Showroom and the Carib Hospitality Suite for meet and greets with the media. The eventual winner was everyone's favourite Mr. Killa.

Imagine having a Ford Ranger full of soca artistes showing up at your next staff lime?

Mr. Daryl Young, General Manager – McEneaney Motors is surrounded by the star power that took over the Ford's Richmond Street Showroom (and just in case you're not sure which one is Mr. Young he's the only one in a shirt and tie)

Soca star Mr. Killa gets comfortable with a Ford Ranger on display in the showroom...it's almost as if he knew that it would eventually be coming home with him

And then there were two. The finalists in the Carib Breakout Artiste 2014, Erphaan Alves and Mr. Killa get ready to go head to head for the top prize

And in the end there was one... Mr. Andrew Sabga, Sector Head – Beverage, presents Mr. Killa with a special prize to commemorate his win

ANSA IN D CARNIVAL

Carib Posse @ Panorama Semi Finals 2014

As is customary Carib painted the Queens Park Savannah blue and yellow for this year's Panorama Semi Finals. This year's lime was bursting with the best food, the best drinks and the best entertainment. Here are a few photos from Carib's Pan Lime on the Greens.

A special thank you to Limett and triniscene.com for their coverage during the 2014 Carnival season

Pavement lime on the Tatil Compound

Not wanting to be outdone by the pavement limes that took on Maraval Road in the weeks leading up to Carnival, ANSA Financial Services hosted their own 'pavement lime' on the Tatil Compound. Staff partied into the night to the sounds of the latest soca tunes and the special performance by a tassa group. No good Trini lime is complete without the eats and drinks, which included our favourite beastly cold brews, doubles, corn soup and shark and bake. Looks like they had a great time, scroll on below to see for yourself:

“Good guy rewarded”

I'm sure some of us can relate to how it feels to misplace a wallet or a purse; well Mr. David Inglefield, ANSA McAL's Retail and Services Sector Head had the unfortunate incident happen to him recently. Mr. Inglefield's story, however, had a happy ending for two persons: himself, when his wallet was returned to him with all his belongings still intact, and Mr. Leo Paul, the Good Samaritan who returned it. Mr. Paul was planning a celebration for his fourth wedding anniversary when he received a generous reward from Mr. Inglefield for his good deed. Mr. Paul put the reward to good use by treating his wife to an anniversary to remember. Take a read below for the tale that is sure to put a smile on your face, and remember: honesty really is the best policy

What are the odds a stranger calling to say he has found your wallet minutes before you are away from the cashier at the supermarket?

This is exactly what happened when ANSA McAL Group's Sector Head of Media, Retail and Services David G Inglefield lost his wallet on Sunday had it returned by Petit Valley Good Samaritan Leo Paul.

Inglefield said moments before his wallet fell on the road, he was putting his granddaughter in her car seat and absent-mindedly left it on the hood of his car.

In relating the incident yesterday Paul, an auto body technician and a peddler of “life-time warranty cooking pots”, said he was in his car with his wife and children around 1 pm when he spotted “something strange” on Gray Street, St Clair.

“I immediately stopped and when I picked it up I realised it was someone's wallet just lying in the middle of the road,” Paul said.

His immediate instinct was to return it.

There was US$300, about US$4 and TT$4 along with several pieces of important documents in the wallet, Paul said.

He also spotted a handwritten note leading him to contact a Mr James.

“I thought this person must know Mr Inglefield and it turned out that he did. I gave him my number for Mr Inglefield to contact me,” Paul said.

Paul said he was on his way to collect cocoa from a friend in Maraval when Inglefield called and told him he was in Hi-Lo, coincidentally in Maraval.

“I told him well come outside and get your wallet. He was very happy and surprised and he shook my hand. He offered to give me some sort of commendation but I told him there was no need for that. I was just happy to return the wallet,” Paul said.

The next day Paul got a surprise.

He got a call from Inglefield's secretary telling him to come to his office.

“I didn't have time to change my clothes. When I got there I got a note thanking me for my good deed and a cheque with the equivalent amount of money found in the wallet.

“I was really surprised. I didn't expect this,” Paul added.

It turned out that yesterday was Paul's fourth wedding anniversary and he has already cashed the cheque to celebrate.

Paul, a Jehovah's Witnesses, seems to have a knack for finding lost items. He said that was the third wallet he has found and returned. He has also found cellphones.

The incidents, Paul described, were enriching.

“I lost my wallet once and I know the hassle you have to go through to get back the documents. It's really a great feeling when you could do that simple deed of returning someone's possession,” Paul said.

To Inglefield the return of the wallet is a reflection of a wider picture that good men still exist in a society where crime is prevalent.

“I am the enteral optimist. There is still a lot of good people. Sometimes that feeling of fear suppresses a person's ability to step out and do good things but we sill have people willing to do just that,” Inglefield added.

“AMCO employees clean-up Welcome Bay”

Most product launches, especially for wines or spirits, take the form of big parties and ultra exclusive events. When AMCO recently launched the Barefoot Wines brand they did things just a bit differently. A team from AMCO took to the shores of Welcome Bay, Chaguaramas for a clean-up drive. Yes you read correctly they launched Barefoot Wines by cleaning up one of our local beaches. You see the brand is one that is environmentally conscious and believes in sustainability, so the team at AMCO felt that a trip to the beach would be the ideal setting. Scroll on below for a look at some of the coverage that their unique venture got.

Let’s all remember to follow AMCO’s example: the next time you venture to the rivers or beaches don’t forget to clean up after yourself and leave nothing but footprints in the sand.

AMCO employees clean-up Welcome Bay

As part of the mission behind its brand, Barefoot Wines officially launched its product with a clean-up of Welcome Bay, Chaguaramas, last Friday. From as early as 7 am, staff and associates of AMCO, the distributors for the wine, gathered to pick up the many pieces of trash and debris that littered the seaside.

According to Brand Manager for AMCO, Marlon Williams, Barefoot Wines is about sustainability and environmental consciousness. “The idea is you are able to walk barefoot on the beaches, the rivers, etcetera; that’s where the concept came up,” stated Williams.

As such, a beach clean-up was more in line with the mission of the brand rather than the more flashing entertainment events that usually form part of many product launches.

On this Friday morning, the group was assisted by the Chaguaramas Development Authority (CDA) in removing the many bags of garbage and debris that were collected. The company hopes to have many more similar activities as it continues to promote the wine which was first introduced to Trinidad last year.

MOSCATO and Pink Moscato are among the different types of wines that are part of the Barefoot Wine brand.

Thanks for celebrating our 31st Anniversary with us!

Customers enjoyed the first "Customer Appreciation Day" at Consolidated Finance in Hastings.

Consolidated Finance recently celebrated its 31st Anniversary with a "Customer Appreciation Day" ...

The day started with Radio coverage on Starcom's VOB 92.9 FM and on CBC 98.1 FM. Customers who were with Consolidated Finance from its inception came out to this special event and had the opportunity to mingle with management and staff while enjoying eats, drinks and a selection of music.

Special deals on vehicles included FREE Insurance from Brydens Insurance, while MQI showcased its 2014 'Ford EcoSport' and allowed customers to get a feeling for the performance and comfort this new vehicle offers.

Later in the day, a planned Auction of select vehicles was eagerly anticipated and resulted in all vehicles under the hammer being sold.

Frances Parravicino, Vice President Credit noted, "The day was a great success! It was a real pleasure spending time with our valued customers in an informal and entertaining atmosphere. While our anniversary was the perfect opportunity to show our appreciation, we take pleasure every day in serving our customers".
